Fresenius launches new corporate website

Fresenius has put its new website online: www.fresenius.com. The relaunched website combines technology and design in a modern, user-friendly Internet format. The content has been updated and rearranged, with easy-to-use navigation. Powerful photographs on the homepage will guide visitors to interesting topics. The responsive design optimizes the display of all content on mobile devices and ensures quick loading times.

Under the "Stories" menu point, visitors can learn more about Fresenius' patients, employees, business locations and operations. The stories are not only about facts, figures and business results, but tell a broader public about the company's values and aspirations.

Patients, investors and journalists will find other relevant information presented in dedicated chapters. A new feature for journalists and other media representatives is the "Media Center" page, where Fresenius is providing photographs, videos and other materials for editorial use.

Job seekers and applicants can find all the information they need about Fresenius as an employer, along with job postings and additional services, under the Fresenius Careers website, which has also been relaunched.

www.career.fresenius.com now features a new, responsive design, embedded social media channels, and an improved menu structure and user interface.

The application process has been simplified. Job candidates can now execute the entire process – from checking for openings to completing an application – on their tablet or smartphone.
